

PAPERS ASK EXPULSION OF KAISER

TECH NEWSPAPERS IN DEALING WITH PRESENCE OF WILLIAM HOHENZOLLERN AND CROWN PRINCE ASK EXPULSION.

NO DANGER OF PLOT

Asserts That There Is No Danger Of A Kaiser Made Plot Against New Germany At The Present Time.

London, Nov. 22.—(British Wireless Service.)—The newspapers have been dealing with the presence in the Netherlands of William Hohenzollern and the former crown prince. The "Telegraph" and some of the other journals have asked for the expulsion of the German emperor.

Moderate View.
Others take a more moderate view of the situation. They are in prospect of a new Germany, but they do not see any danger of the emperor or crown prince, but who can say when this danger might not be realized if the "guests" do not depart speedily.

Frank Opinion.
"History teaches that kings in exile like to seize a favorable opportunity to re-assert their former power. The Netherlands have not the power to resist them, but the allied governments have the right to decide whether the residence on Dutch territory of individuals who are considered by them to personify the powers against which they have been fighting is dangerous to them or not. If the Dutch government has any opinion on the subject then it will have to bear the consequence."

Scheidemann Resigns.
Philip Scheidemann resigned as minister of the new German government and his place has been taken by Herr Lamsberg, secretary of publicity, art and literature, according to a Berlin dispatch.

Final Peace.
"It is hoped that the next few weeks will bring a preliminary agreement, a final peace only with a consolidated Germany. The foremost task of the assembly, therefore, will be to safeguard and give support to the peace. It will be in the interest of the peace to prevent any political or economic prosperity without a national assembly."

WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT MENTIONED AS SUCCESSOR TO PRESIDENT VAN HISE

Madison, Wis., Nov. 22.—A meeting of the regents of the university of Wisconsin will be called soon to make arrangements for the election of a successor to President Van Hise.

It is believed that Dean H. A. Hise of the college of letters and science of the university, who is the only one of the regents in Europe, will be elected as acting president. Dean Hise is past sixty-seven years of age and has been a member of the regents since 1913.

It is noted that he is the one man who is in close touch with the university affairs for the past several years and that the Van Hise policy could be carried out.

Many names have been suggested here as presidential possibilities. Albert Ross Hill, professor of the law, is mentioned, and a well known educator, is mentioned by some of the members of the faculty. The name of Chief Justice J. B. Winslow, a distinguished alumnus of the university, has been mentioned by some of the alumni. Former President William H. Taft is suggested by some of the men, who have been active in the league to enforce peace.

There was in Madison today a conference to attend the peace league conference, which had the full support of President Van Hise, and many of the university authorities have been impressed with the possibility of a selection of the university to head the administration affairs of the university.

On the university faculty, the name of Dean H. L. Russell of the college of agriculture, has been pressed by some of the agricultural representatives. A number of years ago Dean Russell was offered the portfolio of agriculture in the national cabinet, but declined. He has been active in the work of the U. S. Evans of the medical staff, popular with the students and faculty, is also mentioned.

NOTABLE SCENE ENACTED WHEN VESSELS WERE TAKEN OVER
BY THE ALLIES

Glory Has Departed From The Keel
Of The Former Kaiser With The Loss of The Great Naval Power

Edinburgh, Nov. 22.—Germany as a naval power ceased to exist today. The great fleet of the Kaiser's navy, which had been the pride of the German empire, was taken over by the allied powers.

The German warships, strung out in a single column almost twenty miles long, appeared at the rendezvous. The allied fleet, which had been waiting for the German ships, moved forward and took possession of the German vessels.

A surrender on such a gigantic scale has no precedent in the history of the world. The German fleet, which had been the pride of the German empire, was taken over by the allied powers.

HOHENZOLLERN MUST ALL LEAVE GERMANY

Amsterdam, Nov. 22.—All the members of the Hohenzollern dynasty will leave Germany in the near future, according to a French dispatch to the Rotterdam Correspondent. Their destination, it adds, is not yet known.

So far as known only members of the Hohenzollern dynasty who already have left Germany are: Wilhelm, Hohenzollern, the former emperor, and his eldest son, Frederick William, the former Crown Prince. Both are in Holland. There have been conflicting reports regarding the former emperor's health, but the probability points to his not staying in Germany.

The emperor has five other sons. Eldest Frederick, Adalbert, August, William Oscar and Joachim. His only daughter, Victoria Louise, married the Duke of Brunswick in 1913. A recent dispatch reported the abdication of the Duke.

Former emperor's only brother, Prince Henry of Prussia, fled from Kiel hurriedly at the time of the naval mutiny, but is not known to have quit German soil. There are several male children among the former ruler's grand children.

London, Nov. 22.—(The Daily Mail.)—The British government has informed and apparently is awaiting for something to turn up.

The Berlin government, the official added, according to the Daily Mail, "has made an attempt to turn the situation to the advantage of the Hohenzollerns, but it is not known whether this attempt has been successful."

No abdication document bearing the Kaiser's signature is in existence as far as the outside world knows—nothing but a document which was signed by the Kaiser in 1918, in which he declared that he was abdicating.

The overthrusting of the Ukrainian government and the capture of Kiev by anti-Bolshevik troops was reported through Copenhagen on Wednesday.

THE STRUGGLE

LOVE BEFORE BUSINESS.
The two men stepped back abashed before Edith. The brother and the husband suddenly felt the burden of conflict and suffering they had imposed on the woman before them. John did not know exactly of what he was guilty; but he felt the guilt of many another occasion. As for her brother, Ned Plowerton, was only too conscious of guilt as he thought of how much he owed his sister and how indifferently he was repaying the debt. He felt conscience-stricken at sight of her, all the more because she did not weep or wring her hands or pour out her distress. She only looked beaten. In the plucky, resourceful woman she was, her look went straight to her brother's heart. "You're right, John," he said turning to him. "I have been lying down on the job. Well, I'm going to it!" None of them alluded to the scene again by word or look. Next morning Ned went to the city. When he returned he had the air of a man who not only knew he had been right all along in a controversy, but had secured proof of it. The general manager of the Universal Healer Company is coming out here to look at my healer. They're the biggest in the business," he announced at dinner.

The Ferrells commented little. Edith had become timid of hope from the failure of so many bright prospects. John kept silent out of dignification to touch in any way on Ned and his affairs. As for Ned, his mind was already spending the money to be derived from his invention on beautiful things and pleasure for Fay Summers. The next morning brought to the Perrell house Mr. Brock. He was a trim, direct-mannered man of affairs, exactly the type one expected of the general manager of a big corporation. He examined Ned's healer and fired question after question at him, ran through the bills of expenses required to run it, all with the thoroughness and dispatch of a man who had learned every branch of his business from the ground up.

Ned took the examination with the easy confidence of a young man to whose feet the world was coming. Edith hovered in the background as nervous and tense as though she were on trial. She drew a quivering breath when she heard Brock's crisp voice say to Ned: "I wish you would draw up a statement of terms for an outright sale to us and bring it to my office Monday at 11. This looks interesting to me. But there's another man's model I want to look at before I decide."

"I'll be glad to do that, Mr. Brock's," Ned said easily. "But there'll be no real competition against my heater, I know. It can't be beaten!" Mr. Brock made no comment. He only jotted down a memorandum of the time and place at which he expected Ned's statement and took his departure.

Edith ran to her brother and threw her arms about him. "Oh, Ned! I hope and pray, he'll buy it!" she whispered. "Ned, you won't fail to get the statement to his office on time, will you, dear?" she persisted from some unreasoned uneasiness. Ned chuckled.

"I don't know but that it will be a good idea to be late to the appointment," he said. "I'll give him an idea I can afford to take my time about it."

"Ned, you wouldn't do that!" Edith exclaimed. "Well, I don't know," Ned laughed, teasing her, yet half in earnest. "When it comes to talking money, the front you show means house which, as I remember, they own, and their combined wages at the work which the author describes they have aggregated a sum ample to run the house and leave them all a decent margin. I suspect that the author of that particular story had always lived in an atmosphere where an income of two or three thousand a year would be regarded as poverty. Could You Do It?

And here is another story which (and doubtless, you) have just read. The husband earns eighteen dollars a week; out of this he is paying on the installment plan for three hundred dollars worth of furniture, a player piano, which was his Christmas gift to his wife (somehow I always associated Christmas gifts of that sort with eighteen dollars a day instead of a week), a sewing machine and a washing machine, besides sending his sister through business college. And on top of that his wife quarrels with him because he won't buy a fifty dollar baby carriage for their baby. The story has a certain sweetness to it, but it seems almost inconceivable to me that it can be true to life.

I sometimes wonder if the literary temperament permits someone else in the family to handle all its money and therefore has no sense of values. Plurality Didn't Elect. In all of the three times that he ran for president Grover Cleveland polled a plurality of the popular vote. In his second race, when he was defeated, his plurality over Harrison was 98,017.

In another story the exact opposite happens. The author represents a family of brothers and sisters as struggling with the most abject poverty. Yet they all live together in a Skiddaw is the not inappropriate name of a village in England that has only a single inhabitant. The lone villager of Skiddaw complains because he cannot vote—there being no overseer to prepare the voters' list and no church or public building on which to "publish" one, as the law requires.

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

16 September, 1918.

My dear Mr. Hart:

Mrs. Wilson and I saw "America's Answer" when it was given here at the Belasco Theatre, and came away feeling that it was one of the most remarkable and one of the most satisfactory portrayals that we had seen of the great task which America has performed with such enthusiasm and in a fashion which cannot leave the results in doubt.

Cordially and sincerely yours,

(Signed) Woodrow Wilson.

HEALTH TALKS

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO DR. BRADY, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

THE MYSTERY PLAGUE

A serious constitutional disease, communicable from person to person through ordinary contact, affecting lives each year, permeating the whole community and all levels of the community in about the same ratio, as prevalent as tuberculosis and even more preventable, the only communicable disease known to be hereditary yet preventable, is nevertheless ignored in public health work and kept insofar as possible a mystery. Yet we pretend to call ourselves intelligent! Syphilis is not a venereal disease, because innocent people suffer the greatest disasters from it. Syphilis is not a skin disease, because ninety-nine in every hundred persons with syphilis show no sign on the skin, and ninety-nine out of every hundred persons who have skin rashness or eruptions about the face

EVERYDAY ETIQUETTE

(Miss Reilly will answer in this column all questions on etiquette)

Never discriminate between your friends. Anyone invited to your home is entitled to entire courtesy.

MARGIE: Yes, you are right. When a man pauses to converse with a lady on the street he should remove his hat entirely from his head and hold it in his hand. Of course, in cold or stormy weather he is pardoned if he simply lifts his hat and puts it on again.

READER: The fifth anniversary is the wooden wedding. Invitations may be sent out on squares of birch bark, which takes ink or printing very well. The refreshment table may be very unique. For the centerpiece use a wooden chopping bowl filled with fruit. Put olives, bonbons and salted nuts on little wooden dishes. Pass wooden plates and wooden forks and spoons.

Syphilis can be cured in six months or in six years. It can't be cured at all. Under skilled treatment the disease may be arrested, and with reasonable care the patient may then remain well the rest of his life. But for a physician to believe or teach that syphilis is absolutely curable today is presumptuous, and far more so than it is for him to say he can cure tuberculosis.

The cause of syphilis is a germ called the Spirocheta pallida. A positive certain diagnosis of syphilis cannot be made until this Spirochete is found in the primary sore, and any physician who employs the microscope can find it if it is there. The first stage of syphilis (coming three to five weeks after exposure) is merely a sore or skin or mucous membrane at the point of inoculation anywhere about the body. The sore resembles an obstinate cold sore. Sometimes there are a group of sores, one or more of which is the syphilitic lesion, called the chancre, or hard sore, because its edges feel somewhat hard under the fingers.

The second stage, coming about the time the primary sore or chancre is disappearing (perhaps a month or later) is the stage of constitutional invasion, the Spirochetes spreading to every part of the body. This causes feverishness and malaise similar to so-called "grippe" or "cold," with some headache, sores like the large canker sores in mouth or throat, and a rash on the skin—a rash varying from a slight mottling, easily overlooked unless watched for by the physicians, to the most widespread eruption. The face is commonly spared.

Months or years later, serious lesions of internal organs develop, in the bones, in the brain, in the spinal cord, or in the liver, in the heart, anywhere or everywhere. Paralysis ("softening of the brain") is late syphilis. Locomotor ataxia is late syphilis. Countless nervous diseases in men and women of all classes of society are unrecognized, concealed or neglected syphilis.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Constipated Baby.
Our ten-day-old baby seems to be very constipated. At the hospital they told me her bowels were well regulated. Could you tell me what would be good to give her. (Mrs. E. R. J.)
Answer—Perhaps some one has indicated on the baby the first dose of castor oil—which introduces constipation in many cases. You do not mention what the baby receives. Suitable diet, patience and plenty of water to drink usually will prevent constipation. I can suggest nothing but liquid petrolatum, half a teaspoonful once or twice daily. Liquid petrolatum is also called "mineral oil." "Russian" and a thousand and one other names—it must be odorless, tasteless and colorless.

TROCO

The Successor to Butter
Made From the White Meat of Tropic Coconuts

WHILE European countries have long used butter made from coconuts, America has perfected the de luxe product. The flavor of Troco is only rivaled by the finest dairy product. The more critical you are, the better you will appreciate the quality of Troco.

Your enjoyment of this new delicacy is increased by the thought of its appetizing ingredients. The same dainty white coconut meat you use shredded on cake and pure pasteurized milk is an appealing combination.

The fastidious care used in every process of making is another recommendation. The makers of Troco specialize in this one product.

High Nutritive Value

Troco, like butter, is invaluable energy food of the highest nutritive value. It is as digestible and easily assimilated.

It is not a substitute for butter, but really butter's successor, solving the butter problem for millions.

Old laws, made before this great discovery, compel us to label it as an oleomargarine, but Troco contains no animal oils—and no preservatives.

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON

LETTERS MAY BE ADDRESSED TO MRS. THOMPSON, IN CARE OF THE GAZETTE

Dear Mrs. Thompson: One day when I was coming down with a cold I went across the street from where I work to a doctor. He was very kind to me and prescribed a medicine. A few days later we met out in front of where he lived and he offered work and he offered to drive me home.

He is a bachelor and so I accepted his invitation. Then he took me home every night and finally we became engaged. He is ten years older than I am and has very different tastes. Now I have found that I was only infatuated with him and never loved him. It will kill me to marry him.

Don't you think that under the circumstances it would be all right for me to break my promise to marry him and have my ring and it is beautiful.

Yes, you should break your engagement since you have discovered you do not love the man. Love is such a serious matter that engagements should never be made on a short acquaintance or if there is any doubt at all.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I lost a letter from a boy friend and it was very personal. Some one must have found it and said something to him, because he does not even speak to me now and before he said he loved me. In fact he said he loved me in the letter I lost. What can I do?

Such a matter should be explained. Write to the boy and tell him the circumstances. Do not ask him to forgive you because you did nothing to call for an apology. If he is sensible he will see that you were not to blame.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I would like to send a Christmas letter to the soldier boys whom I know in France. Several of the boys are close friends, but two of them are

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are three school girls in the first year of high school. We are very much distressed in the way our boy friends have been treating us. We all went to boarding school last year and met a lot of boys and girls up there. Since we have come home we have found that our friends, especially boys, have been untrue to us.

At first we wrote very often, and now they have stopped writing to us. They told us so often that they loved us that we cannot understand this. We got one letter from them saying to "Beware." It was written in red and black ink. Will you kindly tell us what this means and give up the proper advice.

ANNIE, WORRIED AND DOUBTFUL

I have no idea what the boys meant in their letter written with red and black ink. Ignore it and forget the boys.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have been going with a nice, respectable young man for over a year. We are just good friends. He is now in a training school and writes me about four letters a week.

I always answer the next day, but of course if he fails to write for a day or so I do not write. I try to write interesting letters, for I think soldier boys enjoy getting them, and this particular boy says he does.

Do you think I am writing too often? Yes, you are writing too often. I should write only once a week, and all the most literate letters are all you should write. It will be better for him to want to hear from you often than to get tired of a too extensive correspondence.

CHAPTER V. A Mystery.

I CROUCHED behind the stove again in time to see a dim figure enter the kitchen. The lightning revealed Lucile in a dressing gown with her hair over her shoulders. In the single flash of light she appeared to be the most beautiful thing that I had ever seen.

She turned the flashlight on the wall and finally rested its ray on the box of dog biscuit. She went over to it, picked up one of the biscuits, pressed it to her cheek and was about to bite it when she hastily dropped it back into the box, put out the light and stood perfectly still, listening.

There was another sound on the stairs!

When I looked to see what Lucile was doing she had disappeared. Probably she was, was hiding somewhere near, I reasoned.

This time there was less delay. Whoever was coming downstairs was unhesitatingly assured and was scratching matches on the wall as he went along to guide his progress. He entered the kitchen. It was Bopp, clad in the sort of pajamas I thought he wore. He was laughing to himself as he came in and went straight to the box of biscuit. He took one out of the box.

And he ate it!

Before that I may have disliked the man, but now—A smile of enjoyment spread over his features, plainly discernible when the lightning flashed. Evidently the dog biscuit were delicious. At last he finished and started to leave. I was about to breathe a sigh of relief when I happened to glance toward the shelf where the biscuit were kept.

The box was gone. The fiend was taking them with him. Without a thought for poor Tootles, who would doubtless starve to death, he was going to eat all his food.

With one bound I was upon him. The thought of that poor dog steeled my heart. I grabbed him by the throat, and we swayed back and forth in a rough and tumble fox trot movement to the tune of the rolling thunder.

At Death's Door

"I was talking with my neighbor, Mr. Webb, the other day, regarding the great trouble his stomach had given him. He said he suffered 7 or 8 years and had been almost at death's door a number of times from acute indigestion and bloating of gas, which seemed to shut off his heart action. He said he wouldn't have lived much longer if he hadn't taken Myer's Wonderful Remedy when he did, which made a well man of him. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhs, mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. J. P. Baker, Druggist.

PETEY DINK—WHY PICK ON THE MOVIES!

Bopp did not know as I did that Lucile was watching somewhere there in the darkness, and on that account he was able to use more forcible language than I, but I had superior weight, and I was slowly bearing him back when all at once he dropped the box of dog biscuit and with his free hand landed a wallop in my stomach. It would have been a foul under any circumstances, but with my inner workings resembling those of a vacuum cleaner it was positively inhuman.

Maddened by that blow, I growled between my clenched teeth, "If you hit me below the belt again I'll tear your pajamas!"

Edgerton News

Edgerton, Wis., Nov. 22.—The balance of the high school football season has been cancelled owing to the fact that several of the players are unable to play. ## BAN ON BUILDING OPERATIONS ARE OFF

The lid is now completely off, so far as building operations of every description are concerned.

As soon as the armistice was signed, the war industries board began removing restrictions which had been placed on manufacture of building materials and their use in construction because of war needs, and now comes their complete removal, conditions, so far as governmental restriction is concerned, being restored to the pre-war status.

August H. Vogel, regional advisor for region 17, covering all of Wisconsin, except the extreme northern and northwestern counties, received the following message from S. F. Bush, director of the facilities division of the war industries board, Thursday night:

"All restrictions on construction projects now in force, of every kind, are herewith removed by order of the war industries board."

Under the first lifting of the ban, construction projects involving an outlay of not to exceed $25,000 for industrial purposes or $10,000 for private, home, school, church, hospital, and public construction cost less than $25,000, and all farm and ranch building was permitted without interference by state councils.

All other construction work has been postponed until after the project has been passed upon by the state council and endorsed by Mr. Bush, although all road, street and bridge work by states or municipalities and state or public utility construction was encouraged and freed from supervision.

The last step has now been taken and it is anticipated by building material interests and contractors that the necessities of the country will cause an immediate boom in the building trades.

ONLY FEW CASES OF INFLUENZA IN CITY

Less Than Twenty Cases of Spanish Influenza and Pneumonia in Janesville At Present Time, Death

At the present time there are less than twenty cases of Spanish influenza and pneumonia in Janesville. This statement was made by Doctor S. B. Buckmaster, City Health Officer, this morning.

It has been rumored throughout the city that the flu is again increasing in this city, but the story is without any foundation and the number of cases, which are very mild, are decreasing each day.

It is known, however, that the influenza is on the gain in several cities and Doctor Buckmaster stated this morning that the citizens should use every precaution possible to stem the advance of the disease. It is not feared, however, that the disease will again become rampant in this city.

In the month of October sixty deaths were reported to the Health Officer from influenza and pneumonia, but up to the present time this month, only thirteen deaths have been reported. Doctor Buckmaster stated that he didn't think any of them were from the influenza or pneumonia.

With the advent of cold weather it is thought that the Spanish influenza will be completely stamped out. However, people are cautioned to be careful and to use every precaution to guard against pneumonia.

Will Go To Ft. Atkinson: The Janesville Knight Templars will journey to Ft. Atkinson on Monday to attend the funeral of Ex. Governor William D. Hoard.

WHO'S WHO in the Day's News

ALFRED E. SMITH. Tammany lifted Alfred E. Smith from a counter in a fish market in New York to the governorship of that state. He was elected at the recent election to succeed Governor Whitman.

Smith is a Tammany product from the ground up. He is a native of Manhattan Island. One of Tammany's district leaders "discovered" him in a white apron behind the market counter and saw in him material for a political leader. He was given an important municipal clerkship and he gradually worked his way up to the state legislature at Albany when he was thirty.

He remained there until three years ago. Tammany disliked Sulzer and made Smith speaker.

The next chapter in Smith's rise was written when the machine made him sheriff by a plurality of 47,000 votes. Then he was considered for the mayoralty race against the late John Furroy Mitchell, but was asked to give Hyman a chance and Hyman was elected. Smith was made president of the board of aldermen.

Then came his nomination for the gubernatorial race and his election. His main strength lay in the fact that he has every detail of New York's peculiarities, politics and requirements at his command.

Two vessels were not surrendered.

London, Nov. 22.—The German battleship Konig and the battle cruiser Muckensen, which, although specified for surrender, Thursday, were permitted to be absent are being disarmed under the supervision of Vice Admiral Browning of the British navy, who was sent in Germany for that purpose, according to the correspondent of the Daily Mail, with the British fleet. The Konig has been in dock and could not be moved, while the Muckensen had not been completed.

Some naval men, the Daily Mail correspondent adds, believe that the surrendered German ships will never be returned to Germany. They believe they will be divided among the allies, including the United States.

MORRIS MILLER

Just a paragraph to start.
Connie Mack, as everybody knows, has made a fortune for himself and the Philadelphia club selling great ball players at fabulous prices. We all know that his $100,000 infield brought him more than that when he sold it. Eddie Collins brought $50,000.

Now for the smash.

The same Connie Mack suggests that when the big league baseball is resumed, measures be possible eliminating the selling of ball players for big prices.

What a flop.
If it came from anyone else but Cornelius McGillicuddy, everyone would emit a large guffaw and let it go at that.

But there is sense in Connie's suggestion.
Mack gives as the main reason the fact that this bartering of talent gives a tremendous advantage to the ball club backed by unlimited millions over the club owned by men with less capital who are taking a greater chance than the millionaire moguls.

Connie is dead right.

There is another reason—to which Connie points also.
The right to buy and sell stars for huge prices is unfair to the managers. The real manager—the man who can build up a good ball club simply by his knowledge of players and the game, cannot show his real worth. A second rate manager with unlimited capital back of him can put a strong team in the field without the real baseball ability.

Under the new order of things there would be more real interest in the managers. Their work in building up winning teams from the ground up would be watched by every fan. The managers would have to show real big league caliber. Their worth would be shown by the development in the young players and the general all-around play of the team.

We give Clarence Rowland credit for being a good manager although a few short seasons ago. But would Rowland have had such a good ball team if Charley Connolly had not purchased Eddie Collins, Joe Jackson and other stars.

Twenty to one—no.
Of course the real benefit would be derived by the fans. The players before the war did not give all the fun a suture deal. The stars of the team to which they gave their loyal support were interested only simply to give the moguls more coin directly in cash or indirectly by strengthening their teams.

The sale of players by one big league club to another would not be eliminated under Connie's plan. A maximum price of $2,500 or $3,000 would be set for sales. This would

BURNS LOOMS UP IN BANTAMS' CONTEST;
DESERVES CHANCE AT PETE HERMAN NEXT

Frankie Burns

Frankie Burns stands out in the race for the much-claimed bantam-weight title since he halted Kewpie Ertle of St. Paul the other night at Jersey City. Eastern critics would like to see him meet Dick Loadman and then Pete Herman. Of course they figure he can beat Loadman and then demand that the title go to the winner of the Burns-Herman bout.

still give the clubs a chance to switch stars whenever they felt that the acquisition of new stars or the disposal of unpopular stars was necessary.

The whole idea sounds well.

Of course the magnates would howl that the sale of stars helps keep up interest in the game. It helps swell gate receipts temporarily, but that's all. I doubt if it creates any real added interest.

Jess Willard reminds one of Jack Dempsey—Jess is so different. Dempsey told the men in charge of the United War Work program he would spar at exhibitions at any time and with any one for the good of the cause.

The gathering became that of a church family, talking over the loss of one of its own. Dr. Randolph had endeared himself to the community, while he has been supplying the place left vacant by Rev. L. Tales of the Friendly
Forest

"Now let us go to the Drug Store," said the wise Dr. Quack, after he had extracted—which means take out, you know—the bullet from poor Mr. Buck's leg, as I mentioned in the last story. So they hurried off in the Lucknowobile and pretty soon they came to the medicine shop and Dr.

Quack bought some lettuce and some Hot Ginger Pills for the poor deer.

And then kind Uncle Lucky said:

"I'll take him home, doctor," so off he drove to Mr. Buck's house, and, oh, dear me! Poor Mrs. Doc was so worried that she forgot to put the dough in the oven and they didn't have any bread that night for supper.

"Something is always happening," said the old gentleman rabbit. "Now, I wonder what will come next," and he pulled out his gold watch and chain and then he put on his goggles and took the wheel and steered for home. But they hadn't gone very far when, all of a sudden, the Sledmobile ran into a deep hole and out rolled the two little rabbits onto the snow.

"Oh, dear me! I'm so upset. My wedding stovepipe hat's all wet. My collar's full with cold, wet snow. Which trickles to my shoes below. Oh, dear, again. The whooping-cough."

I fear will surely send me off."

And dear, kind Uncle Lucky began to sneeze, and then he had to blow his nose with his blue silk polka-dot handkerchief, and of course after that he couldn't tie it over his old wedding stovepipe hat.

Now let's get the Sledmobile out of this hole," said Billy Bunny, so he and Uncle Lucky pushed and pulled and pulled and pushed some more, but it was of no use. That Lucky's snowmobile wouldn't move. No, sir. It was stuck as fast as a W. S. Stamp on one of Aunt Columbian's Thrift Cards!

Well, I'm sure I don't know what these two poor, tired little bunnies would have done if their kind friend, the Old Brown Horse, hadn't come by just then.

"Tie a rope to my collar and I'll pull your Sleighauto out," he said. And when that was done, he gave one tremendous pull and the Sledmobile came out as nicely as you please.

"Come along home with us," said dear, kind Uncle Lucky. "My cook will have apple pie for supper and carrot marmalade and lollypops with puff cream tops and lettuce cakes and candy snakes!" So the Old Brown Horse got on the back seat and away they went for Uncle Lucky's house, and by and by they drove in the front yard without anything more happening to them, wasn't that strange. I don't see how it was, but I'm awfully glad, for it was just supper time and I'd hate to have them lose that lovely supper.

Well, after they all had taken off their fur overcoats and goggles, they sat down to eat, and in the next story, if the yellow lemon lollypop Doesn't make the old clock stop. I may have time tomorrow night Another Bunny Tale to write.
